The program gives reservists a chance to continue to use their skills and knowledge to serve their community. Currently, most reservists are retired RCMP regular members. However, some divisions also accept applicants from other Canadian police agencies.

A complaint must also meet the following criteria:

- the person complained about must have been an RCMP member or other person appointed or employed under Part I of the RCMP Act at the time of the alleged misconduct (even if they are not any longer)

Perhaps I should have emphasized in italics 'EVEN IF HE IS NO LONGER' (a member of the RCMP). Or any other person appointed under the Act. The Man was APPOINTED to take My complaint, so he very much falls under the jurisdiction of this investigation, and it happened on Your property, so You are a corporate body are liable if not Your personal agents, You accept liability as principal to agent.

You are on NOTICE OF CIVIL AND CRIMINAL LIABILITY, AGGRAVATED HARM.

You need to tell Me who is going to hold this Man accountable for his wrongdoing, and who Will be compensating Me for the assault and unlawful seizure of My property. If You don't suggest a reasonable remedy, I Will decide how much it should be and bring a claim against him in his personal, private capacity, along with You as his co-conspirator.

Where does the Act stipulate that it is not binding upon an officer in Your building posing as an RCMP officer? An retired RCMP officer is covered by the legislation and Act You site in Your 'jurisdiction' letter.

Look forward to hearing from You, Mr. Richard
